

1) Waiting

I had a vision of Clint.
Did you see it, too?
Talking to a chair,
right over there.
Old heroes bowed down to the king,
I had no idea whose praise they're going to sing:
The teflon men who are always changing shape.
Will it be too late? We hesitate.

All the unread books
sitting on your shelf.
To be complete you have to be yourself.
Why don't you grab a seat
and think of your reply
or wave goodbye?
Time is flying over your head.
Will it be too late? We hesitate.

You breathe. Aaah.

2) Your Gown

Pick up your phone and call up Julian.
How many mirrors did he sell again?
So, save me some time and send me mine
right over here for now.

You say that business has never been that good.
It's time to stock up now because you should.
Save me some time and send me mine
right over here for now.

Oooh your gown, oooh your gown,
behind the silver screen I know your gown,
behind the silver screen I know your gown.

Everybody wants to have yours, too.
When this one's gone, you'll have to make some new.

Oook you gown...

3) Them Busy Dreams

When I close my eyes
I leave the shipwrecks behind.
The house that we end up in is where all the children play with fire.
And if you say, all things stay the same,
I'd say your heritage is to blame (blame).

Ghost on fast wheels knows how it feels to be grounded and surrounded.
Love grows old on the other side (other side).

4) Come And Gone

No comfort on the radio.
The warriors play their videos.
There ain't no voice to keep me warm.
Your anger is pulling me apart, apart.

When your home has come and gone.
The streets have swallowed your only one.
Your're not quite out and not quite in.
Do they wonder where you're been, you've been?

5) Play With Fire

Ah, Brazil likes to play with fire.
Ah, you like them so strong.

Ah, ah.

Ah, Brazil, you love to play with fire.
Ah, Brazil, you love to play with fire.

Ah, ah.

6) Going Out

Call up your friends because it's been much too long.
We are going out, we are going out now.

Call up your friends because it's been much too long.
We are going out, we are going after all.

Alone in your room where you travelled with gloom,
It was high time to climb down the fire escape stairs.
No visits allowed, you were trapped in your cloud.
How many nights have you stayed out of sight,
on your own?

Call up your friends...

The city is big and the city is small,
You'll rest your mind when you're having a ball.
How many nights have you stayed out of sight,
on your own?

Call up your friends...

7) Olive Green

Men in olive green waiting to take you away.
They don't listen, they don't hesitate.

There is no surprise in the old woman's eyes.
Men in olive green, they have their means.

Men in olive green waiting to take you away.
They don't listen, they'll have their way.

8) The Last Band

Sing like it's the last time
before you take a long break.
Why, oh why, some say it's regression that causes depression.

You're the last one who has the means
to travel wherever you please.
The rest are relying on their streams
like faint echoes in space.

Oh, please don't let me down.
I've spent a fortune to be around
to wave goodbye to a bygone time.
We closed our hearts,
now we close our eyes.

You're the last one who has the means
to travel wherever you please.
The rest are relying on their streams
like faint echoes in space.

9) Oh Panic

Sunlight after the rain.
What should I do?
Should I go out again?
It feels different,
it's still out there.
Don't need no news
to help my blues.
And you're still calling,
you're still needy
and all your followers are breeding.
You make me panic, panic, panic, panic.

10) On Your Skin

A little kindness seems to be the hardest thing to do.
When everything is tongue in cheek,
and every boy is tough and weak.

It seems, you'll never say the word.
Your diary is on your skin.
And you don't know how to end,
don't know how to begin.

11) The New Kingdom

When the billionaires are bored
they shape their kingdoms,
so they can escape
to their castles in space.
